Market Analysis

ICE Arabica coffee futures for July delivery continued their upward march that began a week ago, rising 1.8% to settle at $1.2875 per pound. Over the past five sessions, coffee prices have soared 8%, the longest winning streak in nearly a year. The recent rise in arabica a coffee price has outpaced that of robusta coffee, which has significantly outperformed the arabica prices in the past few months. Robusta coffee futures matched the prior session's six-month high on Tuesday, with the market boosted by concern about dry weather in key producers Vietnam and Indonesia. ICE July robusta coffee futures settled up $25, or 1.5 percent, at $1,660 per tonne after touching Monday's six-month high for the second month of $1,665. The upward move came after it closed above the 200-day moving average late last week.
